COCKTAIL ATTIRE
North Carolina is the birthplace of numerous jazz icons — John Coltrane, Thelonious Monk, Lou Donaldson and Nina Simone, to name just a few. North Carolina Central University (NCCU) is proud to serve as a key guardian of this rich American legacy and music tradition. Grammy Award-winner and jazz saxophonist Branford Marsalis and pianist Joey Calderazzo have been artists-in-residence at NCCU since 2005. These internationally renowned musicians were drawn here to support and advance NCCU’s thriving Jazz Studies program.

Under the leadership of Dr. Ira Wiggins, NCCU students have produced seven CDs, including the 2011 release “Slightly Blued.” The Jazz Ensemble’s recording, “Central Visions,” resulted in performances in Europe and two appearances at the Clinton White House. Other notable concert venues have included the 30th Detroit Jazz Festival, New York City Jazz Festival and the 55th Newport Jazz Festival at the invitation of their mentors Marsalis and Calderazzo.

Please join us! With your attendance or sponsorship of this event, you are investing in one of the nation’s cultural treasures, jazz, and the young and emerging artists who will ensure that it thrives.
