PHILANTHROPY
2013 - 2014
NORTH CAROLINA CENTRAL UNIVERSITY
The 2013–14 Philanthropy Report presents an overview of the contributions to North Carolina Central University by alumni, students, parents, faculty, staff and friends during fiscal year 2013-14. These combined gifts total more than $5.42 million, including $1.6 million donated by our alumni, who contributed at record high levels. The generosity of many individuals and groups is what keeps the gateway to opportunity open to thousands of young scholars in North Carolina and beyond. With your ongoing support, we pledge to remain focused on our number one priority, student success. We move forward in confidence, knowing that the ideals of Truth and Service resonate as loudly today as they did for our founder, Dr. James E. Shepard, more than a century ago.

North Carolina Central University is a first-choice, global institution offering a premier higher education. With academic programs in the biosciences, science, mathematics, business, nursing, education, social sciences and law, NCCU trains and educates students for the global marketplace.

KEY PRIORITIES FOR THE UNIVERSITY

INCREASING SCHOLARSHIP FUNDS
Scholarships are needed to attract top scholars and extend financial help to qualified students who may need assistance to attend college. We are providing resources necessary for students to expand and complete their education at NCCU.

ADVANCING KNOWLEDGE
To continue to attract and retain leading faculty and distinguished professors, funding must be in place to support cutting-edge research, scholarly publication and other academic endeavors. These resources also provide additional opportunities for NCCU’s student scholars.

IMPROVING LIVING AND LEARNING ENVIRONMENTS
We are focusing on capital giving for the development of new campus facilities.

EXPANDING THE NCCU BRAND
The NCCU profile is expanding beyond the region and the state. As the institution’s academic portfolio and engagement with the community increases, we must expand and foster new relationships so that we can take NCCU’s story worldwide.
Dear Alumni, Donors and Friends:
Thank you so much for investing in North Carolina Central University. The influence you have on shaping the lives of our students is tremendous. Through your contributions, we are able to educate and equip scholars, giving them the competitive credential they will need to succeed in the global marketplace.

We at NCCU are dedicated to delivering what we call Eagle Excellence, or E-squared: excellence in our classrooms, excellence on our campus and excellence in our service to students and their families. Without you, Eagle Excellence would not be possible!

The 2013-14 academic year showcased this great scholarly community as a crown jewel in the University of North Carolina system. Throughout the year, NCCU demonstrated a number of impressive accomplishments – from the expansion and launch of new research initiatives and international programs to historic achievements by our Eagles athletics teams.

As we continue preparing 21st century scholars for success, we want to thank you for your support of North Carolina Central University. Your gifts help provide student scholarships that are vital in recruiting top scholars and making college possible for quality students who require additional financial assistance.

Your support for faculty allows us to attract and retain distinguished professors who work in various fields of scholarship and ensures that cutting-edge research by faculty and students will continue. Support for capital development, too, is critical, with plans underway for a new Student Center, renovation of residence halls, and other campus projects that are required if we want to attract, retain and graduate today’s most promising students.

Thanks to you, NCCU’s profile continues to grow around the United States and well beyond. We deeply appreciate each of our supporters, whom we depend upon as we strive to carry out Dr. Shepard’s vision and broaden the university’s record of success.

Thanks again for all you do to help turn educational dreams into reality at NCCU.

Yours In Truth and Service,

Dr. Debra Saunders-White
Chancellor

Student scholarships are vital in recruiting top scholars and making college possible for quality students who require additional financial assistance.
Greetings,

On behalf of North Carolina Central University’s Division of Institutional Advancement, I would like to thank all of our donors for their generosity and for helping make our university a valuable educational asset to Durham, the state of North Carolina and our nation. The university remains at the forefront of educating scholars and producing leaders who soar and serve worldwide in industries from the biosciences to business.

It is your devotion that allows us to remain true to our mission of encouraging intellectual productivity and increasing the academic and professional skills of students and faculty. The collective contributions of 5,561 of our alumni, faculty, staff, and friends—as well as our corporate and foundation partners—have produced gifts totaling $5,420,902 million to support scholarships and meet other university goals and priorities. Your donations have produced measurable results that ensure our university and its students will continue to flourish.

Since last fiscal year, our alumni participation rate has risen from 8.5 percent to 12 percent and the percentage of alumni donors by 26 percent (from 1,883 to 2,964) resulting in gifts totaling $1.6 million. Toward the end of last fiscal year, we launched 700 Eagles in 700 Hours and you responded in record numbers! You took to social media and posted, shared and gave.

I encourage all Eagle alumni donors to challenge your former classmates, friends from your residence hall days, fellow student organization and association members, sorority sisters and fraternity brothers to make their donations and commit to giving back consistently to NCCU.

As we look forward to the years ahead, we see a need for a larger endowment at NCCU. A well-funded endowment provides additional income that is necessary for long-range investment, as well for supplementary expenditures based on the needs of our students. These funds also allow us to launch important university initiatives and meet fiscal challenges as they arise.

We are ever grateful for your ongoing support. Your investment in Chancellor Debra Saunders-White’s vision of Eagle Excellence ensures that NCCU will continue to serve and prepare the 21st century scholar for a lifetime of Truth and Service.

With heartfelt thanks,

Harriet Frink Davis, Ph.D.
Vice Chancellor for Institutional Advancement
THE JAMES E. SHEPARD SOCIETY

Through this publication and in other ways, North Carolina Central University recognizes and celebrates the commitment and dedication of all of its donors at every dollar amount. Chancellor Debra Saunders-White leads North Carolina Central University through Eagle Excellence, a strategy that encourages student success by stressing excellence in the classroom, throughout the campus and in service to the community.

As part of this effort, the Eagle Excellence fund was established to provide scholarships for students who were at risk of dropping out due to financial constraints. Over a period of several weeks in 2013 and 2014, more than $200,000 was raised, which helped 300 students remain enrolled at the university.

Friends Gather for a Good Cause

The 30-plus women who make up the Circle of Friends are known for throwing a great party. Their annual get-together takes place during the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association (CIAA) basketball tournament and draws more than 3,000 revelers. Yet it’s not all just fun and games. Circle members, about half of whom are NCCU graduates, have donated proceeds to NCCU and other HBCUs each year since 1993. So far, they’ve raised about $160,000 for the Circle of Friends Endowment. In 2014, the Circle contributed $30,000 for scholarships to NCCU and other institutions. “For me, organizing this party is just my way of showing my love for NCCU,” said Chris Boozer ’78 and one of the party’s chief organizers.

Leaving Behind a Legacy

Dr. Michel Bourgeois-Gavardin was not a graduate of NCCU, but he knew that the university was near and dear to the heart of his close friend and financial advisor Frankie Perry, president of the NCCU Foundation Board of Directors.

Dr. Bourgeois-Gavardin was a medical doctor who practiced at the former Watts Hospital, Durham’s first hospital, which opened in 1895 and closed in 1976 when Durham General Hospital was constructed. He also was also a widower who had no living children. A few years before his death in 2013 at age 95, Dr. Bourgeois-Gavardin spoke with Ms. Perry about his desire to leave a portion of his estate to NCCU.

“He wanted to do something that was important to me,” Ms. Perry recalled, adding that her friend was especially fond of attending concerts performed by the university band.

Dr. Bourgeois-Gavardin drafted his will to leave half of his estate to NCCU, resulting in a $1.9 million endowment that now serves as a perpetual scholarship fund for our student Eagles.

LeRoi Holloway Moore was a uniquely talented individual, a jazz musician and composer who played flute, clarinet and, most notably, the saxophone as a founding member of the successful Dave Matthews Band.

Mr. Moore was known for his musical arranging and for his solos that gave the band its iconic jazz and funk sounds that became widely popular. He was with the band from its beginning in 1991 until his death in 2008.

Born in Durham and raised in Charlottesville, Va., Mr. Moore was only 46 when he died following an ATV accident on his farm in Virginia. Today, his legacy lives on thanks to the LeRoi Moore Fund, a bequest that provides $20,000 annually in perpetuity in support of scholarships at NCCU.

Mr. Moore established the fund to honor his late parents, Roxie Holloway Moore, a member of the NCCU Class of 1950, and Albert P. Moore, Class of 1956, who was a high school teacher and coach in Charlottesville.
Joel and Agustus Silver raised seven children in Goldsboro, N.C., during an era of segregation and deprivation for many people of color. Still, the couple managed to ensure that all of their offspring attended college, including Esther Silver-Parker, who graduated from North Carolina Central University in 1969.

Recognized as a talented young writer and editor, Alumna Silver-Parker went on to attend Columbia University thanks to a scholarship and found success as a journalist at national magazines before embarking on a successful corporate communications career with AT&T and Wal-Mart. In 2010, she opened her own diversity-focused consulting practice, The Silver-Parker Group, in Bentonville, Ark., where she now resides.

As a sign of her appreciation for her parents’ love and support, Alumna Silver-Parker has established the Joel and Agustus Silver Endowment, enabling a new generation of talented young people to reach for their dreams.

The value of the Joel and Augusts Silver Endowment as of June 2014 was $49,115.62.
A $100,000 gift from the The Meldrum Foundation has helped further the education of students for the past eight years.

In 2007, Chris and Jeanette Meldrum were new residents of Durham who were impressed by NCCU’s commitment to science education. The couple – both science majors in college – also happened to be the directors of the Utah-based Meldrum Foundation, established by Chris’s dad, Peter, CEO of Myriad Genetics, a biopharmaceutical company in Salt Lake City.

Thanks to the Meldrums, NCCU became the first university outside of Utah and the only HBCU to receive a donation from the Meldrum Foundation.

Today, the generous gift continues to work hard for our students – providing a $3,000 scholarship for one talented and lucky chemistry major each year.
