RISE is a fellowship program that prepares a new generation of scholars, committed to addressing issues of social equity. Fellows will conduct rigorous, high-quality research in education that will improve the schooling experiences and academic attainment of pre-kindergarten through university-level African American and Latino/a students. Fellows will be mentored by stellar faculty and will be prepared to pursue doctoral education.

RISE fellows will:
- Develop research skills during an eight-week summer research institute, followed by a yearlong faculty mentor experience.
- Prepare for the GRE and work on applications to doctoral programs.
- Travel to NCCU for the summer (travel, campus housing, and a meal plan are included in the RISE fellowship).
- Receive a $5,000 stipend annually ($2,600 for the summer, $2,400 during the following academic year).
- Have an opportunity to publish research and make conference presentations with outstanding faculty.

Eligible applicants are college juniors or seniors who are full-time students in any academic discipline and interested in the field of education. Students who are members of underrepresented minority groups are strongly encouraged to apply.

Applicants must:
- Be U.S. citizens or permanent residents;
- Have a minimum 3.0 GPA (on a 4.0 scale);
- Have completed 3 or more credit hours of coursework in a social science (e.g. sociology, psychology, political science);
- Have written a literature review or research paper and be interested in pursuing doctoral studies; and
- Submit a completed application.
